This measure allows the members of a group of not more than eight hunters to agree on a commitment with a view to using the moose cow hunting licence obtained by random draw and issued to one of them, in a wildlife sanctuary where this licence is valid. Such a measure is only valid in a wildlife sanctuary, under the following conditions:

- Upon entering the wildlife sanctuary, the group of hunters shall give the person at the check-in station a copy of the commitment form allowing them to use the moose cow hunting licence of one of them. This form contains the name of the holder of this licence, the numbers of his regular moose hunting licence and his moose cow hunting licence, the subject matter of the commitment and its duration, the name of the wildlife sanctuary, the date of the commitment as well as the names and signatures of the hunters who can use this moose cow hunting licence and the number of their valid moose hunting licence. The form on the back is proposed for this purpose.
- The duration of this commitment cannot exceed the length of the stay in the wildlife sanctuary.
- All of the hunters whose names appear on the commitment form and whose hunting licence is valid may, for the duration indicated on the form, use the moose cow hunting licence in the wildlife sanctuary concerned, as long as the holder of this licence is present on the territory and until such time as a moose cow is bagged by one of the hunters.
- The moose cow hunting licence expires when a moose cow is killed. The hunter who kills the moose cow must immediately attach to the animal in question his transportation coupon. In addition, he must make sure that the licence obtained by random draw under which the moose cow was killed is perforated at the appropriate spot on the very day the moose cow is killed.
- If the holder of a moose cow hunting licence bags a moose with antlers or a calf, the privilege for another hunter whose licence is still valid to bag a moose cow remains valid during the duration of the authorization, provided that the holder of the moose cow hunting licence remains present on the territory and that the group has the right to bag more than one moose.
- At the time of registration, the hunter who bagged the moose cow must present his regular licence and the moose cow hunting licence under which the animal was killed.

In a wildlife sanctuary, it is up to the holder of the moose cow hunting licence to decide whether he wishes to share his licence with other hunters of his group, when they enter the territory.

Moreover, it is the responsibility of the members of this group to respect the quantity of animals which they are allowed to kill. For this purpose, the individuals taking part in moose cow hunting should always remain close together when hunting in order to be able to communicate with one another when they bag a moose and thereby avoid multiple kills.
