Useful Information

If you qualify for the postponement of repayment of your student debt following the temporary interruption of your full-time studies, the government will pay your financial institution the interest on the balance of any student loan awarded to you under the Loans and Bursaries Program (full-time studies) or the Loans Program for Part-Time Studies.

If you were studying part-time before qualifying for the postponement, the government will only pay your financial institution the interest on the balance of the loans awarded to you under the Loans Program for Part-Time Studies. You must therefore continue to repay the balance due on any previous loan contracted under the Loans and Bursaries Program.

Eligibility Requirements

To qualify for the postponement of repayment of your student debt, you must have been pursuing studies for at least one month during the six months preceding the event justifying your application and intend to return to studies.

Duration of Postponement

A. Pregnancy

You are entitled to postpone repayment for 12 months as of the first day of the month following that in which you reach your 20th week of pregnancy.

B. Birth or adoption of a child

You and your child's other parent are entitled to postpone repayment for 8 months as of the first day of the month following the birth or adoption of your child. However, you must both complete separate forms.

C. Disability of at least one month

You are entitled to postpone repayment for 8 months as of the first day of the month following the beginning of your disability.

D. Term as an elected executive officer within an organization grouping student associations located in Québec

You are entitled to postpone repayment of your student debt during the months in which you serve your term as an elected executive officer, up to maximum of 24 months at each level of education.

If your postponement ends between May and August inclusively, it will be extended until the following August 31.
